Multi-Agent AI Marketing Automation

Olayinka Fagbenro · Founder Estonian Startup Visa Application · June 2026

The marketing stack is broken for SMBs

SMB marketers and agencies spend 60–80% of their time on repetitive content and campaign work.

The problem isn't AI quality. It's fragmentation.

- A writer in one tool, a scheduler in another, an audit in a third
- Performance data lives in a fourth, never feeds back into the first
- 10+ apps stitched with manual handoffs
- Output quality is inconsistent because data doesn't flow between them

The result: founders running their own marketing burn hours on context-switching instead of building product.

One platform. 18 agents. A closed loop.

Audit → Generate → Publish → Analyze → Improve

- 18 specialised agents today — SEO audit, content strategy, copywriting, social, email sequences, campaigns, A/B tests, programmatic SEO, growth playbooks, more
- Agents share research, brand voice, and performance data — no patchwork
- The feedback loop is live in production: posts that worked teach the model what to write next week
- Built for the founder who is also their own marketer — the buyer enterprise tools ignore

platforms

HubSpot, Marketo, and Adobe sell up-market. The floor is open — and the SMB / agency segment is the fastest-growing AI marketing buyer cohort.

Why now

01 AI quality crossed the threshold

Claude 4 / GPT-4-class models produce marketing output that's usable without heavy editing — first time true at this price point.

02 MCP standard is emerging

Agents can finally cross product boundaries cleanly — the missing piece for multi-agent platforms.

03 SMB margin pressure is permanent

"Do more with less" isn't a 2024 trend — it's the new operating reality. SMBs need leverage tools, not more SaaS.

04 Agency margins are compressing

Clients want output, not hourly invoices. Agencies need a productivity multiplier that doesn't hollow out the deliverable.

Competitive landscape

COMPETITOR	WHAT THEY DO	WHERE THEY STOP
Jasper · Copy.ai · Writesonic	AI writing	Generate only — no audit, publish, or analytics loop
Surfer · SEMrush · Ahrefs	SEO tooling	SEO-only — no content generation, no publishing
HubSpot · Marketo · Adobe	Enterprise marketing	Heavy, expensive, slow — wrong shape for SMB / agency
n8n + Claude (DIY)	Generic automation	Requires building every workflow from scratch

Go-to-market

PHASE 1 · NOW

Founder-led, build-in-public

- 14-day launch playbook on X + LinkedIn — Conduikt generating its own marketing
- Direct DM outbound to solo SaaS founders (the ICP)
- Target: first 100 paying customers by month 6

PHASE 2 · MONTHS 6–12

Agency partnerships

- White-label client reports + bulk content generation as the leverage angle
- Agencies become a force multiplier — one agency = 10–40 underlying SMB seats
- Target: 20 agency partners by month 12
